1. INTRODUCTION

It is generally accepted that the most successful and sustainable companies are the ones that have the fewest ethics problems. This is the reason why at Caudan Development Limited (“CDL”) we believe that we always need to strive to keep our businesses from being distracted by the effects of unethical conduct, and from the serious financial losses that can result.

This code of ethics (the “Code”) has been devised to provide directors and employees (collectively the “Employees”) of each business segments, i.e., investment, property, security and any other forming part of the CDL Group, including its subsidiaries (collectively the “Group”), the required information on how to always conduct business with the highest levels of integrity. This Code, together with the rules and policies applicable within the Group provide, undeniably, to each one of us the required information to understand how ethics can differentiate us in the marketplace from our competition.

Reflective of its corporate philosophy and anchored on its core values of Integrity, Customer Care, Teamwork, Knowledge, Innovation and Excellence, the Group believes that to maintain its strong relationships with customers, shareholders, employees, local communities and other stakeholders, it is essential in all day-to-day activities to maintain the highest standards of business ethics and alertness.

The conduct of every person within the Group has a substantial impact on the Group’s ability to maintain continued success as well as good reputation. We constantly have to apply common sense, sound judgement and integrity to the business issues we face and this will help ensure that decisions taken are consistent with values of the Group. To assure our continued success, and help make something happen every day, each one of us must constantly adhere to both the letter and spirit of the present Code.
